

Past are thy victories--Two worlds no more
 Applaud their hero as in days of yore.
 Unfaded yet the laurels on that brow,
 Listless, inert, no triumphs lure thee now.

Men gazed and wondered at that brilliant star,
 Outshining all its compeers near and far;
 Resistless combinations charmed their eyes,
 Puzzled--spellbound, they stood in mute surprise.
 How would Caissa hail thee once again,
 Yet now her smiles for thee are all in vain.

Bingle wins Problem Solving Contest. Jim Bingle of the Argonne Knights scored 15 out of a possible 17 points to win first place in the problem solving contest and a copy of the recently published Tenth Edition of Modern Chess Openings. Tony Czerniecki of Johnson & Johnson won second place and a copy of Alekhine's "My Best Games of Chess." Unfortunately, Tony received one of his bulletins too late or he might well have tied Jim for first. Final standings are on page 3.

Formanek Wins Master's Open. Ed Formanek, who's making a habit of winning just about every tournament in sight, captured first place in the strong Master's Open held in Minneapolis in June. Ed's score of 4-1 placed him one-half point ahead of Arthur Bisguier, Donato Rivera and Paul Tautvaisas, who finished in a tie for 2nd-4th.

Byrne Triumphs in Illinois Open. Robert Byrne recovered from the Greater Chicago to take top honors in the Illinois Open held in Chicago over Memorial Day weekend. Ed Formanek equalled Byrne's score of 6½-½ to take second place on tie-breaking in the 146-player event. Dr. Martinowsky and Allen Kaufman finished 3rd and 4th, respectively, with 6-1. The Yugoslav System (or "anti-Sicilian porcupine") yields White a very strong King-side attack. Black must react promptly and vigourously on the Queen-side in order to survive.

In the game Warren-Kirby, Austin C.C. vs. Univ. of Chicago, 1961, Black continued 17...QR-N1 18 P-R3 B-Q2 19 RxR (19 R-R5 is probably better) with a draw resulting.

18 P-R3

Black does not want to settle for a draw and repeated the position twice only to gain a couple of moves on the clock. Kirby is notorious for getting into extreme time pressure and simply wanted to make it a little less acute than it would otherwise become.

As Ed Formanek commented in his game in the April bulletin, for the last 15 moves or so "White was in serious time pressure and Black was in critical time pressure." As a result, white let the game drift into a draw but Black missed it. After 45...Q-R8 white's QRP would fall.
