Volume 26 Bulletin 4

January 1983

President's Report

Welcome back from the long holidays. I hope everyone is well. It saddens me to report that the ENGRAVE-IT team has chosen to resign from our league. Maybe this will be a lesson to us all.

Nik Goncharoff of Motorola has volunteered one of his team members to coordinate the banquet this year. Watch for information in future bulletins. That leaves us wanting for a Toronado Tournament director, Trophy Chairman, Championship Playoff Tournament Director, Nominating Committee Chairman and Speed Chess Director.

Remember, in order for these events to take place someone out there needs to volunteer. To volunteer simply call me; days, 260-7079

evenings, 898-7683

Ratings Information

To insure correct rating of games, please submit players names as they appear in the CIJCL Bulletin. Any errors in the bulletin should be reported to Lance Ogasawara, 260-7653. The following errors have been noted and corrections will be made at the end of the season:

|------------|----------------------------------|
| Delhafen,A | corrected to Oelhafen,A |
| Shirky,L | corrected to Shirkey,L |
| McHarg,C | corrected to McHarg,C |
| Ludwig,J | should be on the BTL Royals team |
| Jakstas,K | should be on the Alumni #2 team |
| Parker,L | should be on the WE Tyros team |

In addition to this, it should be noted that "Anderson,D" of Continental Bank will appear as "Anderson,DC" and "Smith,M" of Veterans Administration will appear as "Smith,JM". Corrections concerning the ENGRAVE-IT team will not be made until the next bulletin.

Computer Committee Report by Joe Brozovich

I. We need computerized ratings!

$$34 \text{ teams} \times 10 \frac{\text{matches}}{\text{team}} \times 7 \frac{\text{boards}}{\text{match}} + 2 = 1190 \text{ games during regular season.}$$

$$8 \text{ teams} \times 3 \frac{\text{matches}}{\text{team}} \times 6 \frac{\text{boards}}{\text{match}} + 2 = 72 \text{ boards in playoffs.}$$

$$\text{Total games / year} = 1190 + 72 = \underline{1262 \text{ games / year}}$$

II. Computer Alternatives

1. Timesharing System - Rating Chairman writes programs and runs them.
 - a. Requires hardcopy terminal & Modem, cost $1000.00
 - b. Must pay connect time & storage charges plus phone charges
 - c. Sample cost, $100/month + $7.00/hour connect time
2. Service Bureau
 - a. Write programs and run them like payroll for small companies
 - b. One time programming costs = $75.00/hour
$$\frac{$75}{\text{hour}} \times 40 \frac{\text{hours}}{\text{week}} \times 4 \text{ weeks} = $12,000$$
 - c. Plus monthly charge to run programs
3. "Borrow" computer time
 - a. "Borrowers" can be fired
 - b. All league records can be lost
 - c. No league control
 - d. No guarantee of availability
4. CICL can purchase a personal computer to do all work
 - a. League controls all records
 - b. One time cost, minimum system x$1700 (CPU, Memory, 1 disk)
maximum system x$2500 (2 disks & printer)
 - c. Annual maintenance fee ?
 - d. Could do entire bulletin

III. Financing or "Let's Make a Deal"

1. Buy small system now and borrow another disk and/or printer from CICAL member(s), cost x$1500-1800
2. Use CICAL member(s) computer system and purchase only 1 disk and printer to be added to basic system for league work, costx$1,000
3. Other?
4. Additional costs:
 - a. Floppy disks $25/box of 10
 - b. Paper $25/box of 2500 sheets
 - c. Software 0 - ?
 - Maintenance $50/year?

Mr. Paul Weston
President, CIGL

Dear Paul:

This letter is my response to your request to review the proposals submitted by Joe Brozovich regarding the means by which the CIGL rating system should be computerized in the future.

I agree completely with Joe that there is no alternative to maintaining the CIGL ratings on a computer. I also agree (although not necessarily with the details of the figures provided) that the only two economically feasible methods of doing this are to "borrow" computer resources from a CIGL employer, or to use a microcomputer. As Joe has pointed out, the former procedure (which is the one used in the past) is subject to a number of substantial risks as well as subject to being interpreted as theft of services. The inevitable conclusion is that the work should be moved in the future to a microcomputer. The only question is how this is to be done, consistent with the financial resources of the League.

Joe has also suggested that the League's microcomputer be used as a word processor for producing the League bulletin. This would of course be technically feasible, but since the computer, including all of its peripherals, would be relatively immobile, this would almost require that the person who is the ratings statistician also be the bulletin editor. This seems to me to be an over-optimistic requirement, since each job is already one of the most demanding ones in the League. I would suggest that we not plan on using a CIGL microcomputer for producing the bulletin at the outset, but that features necessary for this task be included in any system we arrange for, so that this could be an option exercised in the future.

Joe has suggested three options for providing a suitable system. The first option is the purchase of a complete system. The second option is to purchase a minimal system that is within the budget of the League, and to borrow any needed peripherals, such as a printer, from a CIGL member. The third option is to borrow the use of a suitable system from a CIGL member, and for the League to purchase any required peripherals that the owner might not already own.

I would like to give you my ideas on each of these options.

My estimates of costs are based on a system including two double-density floppy disk drives and a printer, a configuration that Joe and I agree would be necessary.

The first option is to buy our own system. I have estimated the costs of six different computer systems that would be adequate for our needs, using the best price discounts that I could locate. (These systems were the Radio Shack TRS-80 Color Computer, the Commodore-64, the Lobo Max-80, the Atari 800, the Radio Shack TRS-80 Model III, and the Apple II, in approximate order of cost.) The cost for a complete system as outlined above ranged from approximately $1700 to approximately $2500. The advantages of this option are that we would be free to choose the most cost-effective system for our needs without compatibility problems with other peoples' equipment; there will never be a need to move the software to another, incompatible system at some time in the future; and the system could be available relatively soon, so that work to convert the existing rating programs to the new system could begin soon. The disadvantage is, of course, the cost. My understanding is that the League has only available around $1300 to be devoted to this purpose at the present time.

The second option does not appear very attractive to me. It does not seem reasonable that a CIGL member with a personal computer would be very interested in loaning substantial parts of his system on a regular basis, unless it were only a printer, or providing the use of a printer. In this case, the problem is that the cost to the League would still be a major portion of that of a complete system.

The final option is to find a member of the CIGL with a personal computer system who would be willing to serve as ratings statistician, with the League purchasing any required peripheral equipment not already owned by that individual, and loaning the equipment to him. Typical costs here would be $450-$500 for a printer, and/or $300-$500 for a disk drive. The advantage of this option is that it does appear to be within the financial means of the League. Disadvantages are that it might be more difficult to develop the rating software if the person involved did not have the expertise or time to do it; and if the ratings volunteer were to move or otherwise become unavailable at some time in the future it might be difficult to find another person with a compatible system to take over the job, thus requiring another software conversion.

In my opinion, the first option is the most desirable, but it appears to be out of the question financially, unless some new ideas are forthcoming. This would then leave us with option three. In order to decide the feasibility of this option, we should poll the League membership to see how many people who have personal computers might be willing to do the ratings work, and what equipment they own. If there are enough potential candidates owning, say, Apple II's, then we could perhaps assume that the problem of migrating the ratings job from one system to another over the course of time would not be severe and that option three would be a reasonable way to go. If it appears on the other hand that we must go to option one, we should determine how important a future word processing capability is, since the lower-priced systems are more more limited in this area.

One final consideration is that the conversion of the existing rating software to a microcomputer will not be a trivial job. A number of the operating system facilities used by the current software will have to be programmed, and there are a number of inter-related application programs that must be translated to a much different dialect of BASIC. This work should be done by an experienced software professional among our members. We should probably plan on paying a token fee for this work.

I hope that these comments will be of use in helping the CICL choose the best alternative for continuing our rating system. I will be glad to discuss these ideas in more detail with you, with Joe and the members of his committee, or with any other group that seems appropriate.

Sincerely,

Charlie Ward
