

Chicago Industrial Chess League

Bulletin 3 Volume 34

December, 1990

The league has recently been informed by Far West division chairman Irwin Gaines that the Argonne ROOKS have withdrawn from the league at least for this season. We hope they will be back.

And while we are on the topic of having teams drop from the league, I will take this opportunity to appeal to anyone who knows of a former league member who would like to continue to participate in the league who does not have a team to play for. Since the east division Alumni teams split again into two teams last season, both the Alumni "A" team and the Second Stringers have been in need of players. It should be common knowledge that, even though only six players play in a given league match, a team's roster should contain at least eight, and preferable nine or more players who would be available to play in most matches. Both alumni teams in the east division have been functioning virtually without any backup this season, and if the situation does not improve, they may have to merge again. I cannot believe that this is beneficial to the league. So if anyone can help us, we would certainly appreciate it.

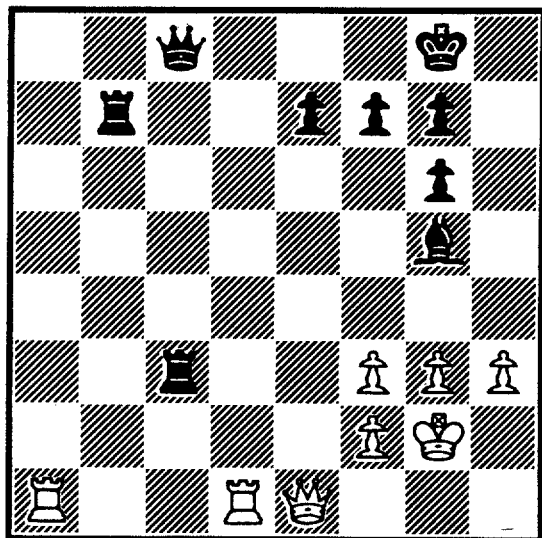

I may also add that any Argonne ROOKS players may be eligible to play on the alumni team of their choice, if they are so inclined, provided that they did not play a regular season game yet this year. This is true even if they plan to return to the Far West division as the ROOKS next season.

THE TWO SQUARES COLUMN

by Marvin Cox

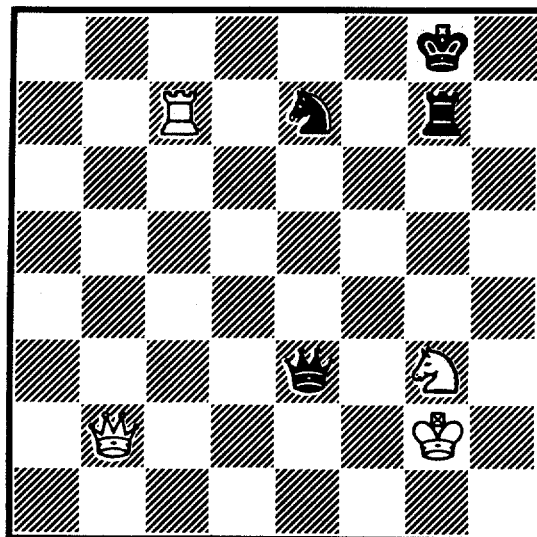

"If two (or more) squares are attacked more times than they are defended they may fall."

In the above diagram, the line a8-h8 is attacked by two white rooks but guarded only once, by the black queen. The black rook on c3 is attacked once and guarded only by the black queen. Overload! The a8-h8 line and the c3 square are attacked a total of three times and guarded only once. They may fall.

1. Q:c3 Q:c3
2. Rd8 ch Kh7
3. R(a)a8 and mate cannot be stopped.

My uncle told me a piece not guarded more times than attacked is "weak". Pinned pieces are also weak, as is any other piece having zero mobility. A couple of these weaknesses and/or an exposed king can be subject to a 2-squares attack. Consciously look for these weaknesses each time it is your turn to move. If you find some, create a 2-squares attack. If you can't, then create an additional weakness in the enemy's camp.

In the above diagram, it looks pretty even, doesn't it? Let's examine this from the 2-squares viewpoint. Squares g7 and f5 are attacked twice and guarded twice. Except that the black knight on e7 is potentially pinned and so does not actually guard f5. Therefore, g7 and f5 are attacked two times and guarded only once, so have they makings of a 2-squares attack.

1. Q:g7 ch K:g7
2. Nf5 ch and wins. Do you know how to win the rook + knight vs knight ending? My uncle always told me to use the 2-squares method to locate a possible combination. After locating it the rest is easy.

White must advance his c-pawn because it is on the half open file. He must also safeguard his e-pawn. Black has a choice of Nc5 to pressure the white e-pawn, or Nb6 and then Nc4 to disrupt White's queenside.

 White's extra pawn is now passed and mobile. Should be enough to win.

 Ideally both kings should move to control the queening square. In this position the black king has the control. Later in the endgame the white king will have the control, on the kingside.
