The 2 Squares Column

by Marvin Cox

'If two (or more) squares are attacked more times than they are defended they may fall

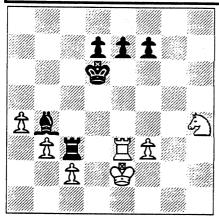

Diagram 80

White is a pawn up but faces a long and difficult endgame in diagram 80 above.

However, a 3 squares attack results in a simpler ending.

Squares c3, e7 and f5 are under 2 attacks by white's rook and knight but are only guarded once by black's bishop. Two attackers, one defender, the squares may fall.

1. Nf5+ Kc5

Now we have a 2-squares problem against e7 and c3. Simplification is more important than the immediate pawn capture.

2. Rxc3 Bxc3 3. Nxe7

The ending is still difficult but with a 2 pawn advantage white should be able to win.

Later we reached move 50 time control.

I'd resolved my difficulties, queened a pawn and wondered why my opponent didn't resign.

Instead he said, "I request adjournment, League rules permit me to do that".

I answered, "League rules don't say I have to grant your request. Get back to the board and take your loss."

(Art. II (G) of the League rules clarifies when a player can demand and actually force adjournment to occur. - ed.)

He swept the piecess off, got up and stomped away.

In diagram No. 81 (top of next column) I was playing black against my uncle. I was up a bishop and two pawns and was feeling pretty cocky. I'd just moved my queen to a5 believing a queen trade was necessary for me to obtain a win.

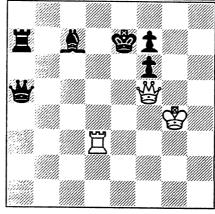

Diagram 81

My uncle said, "You just blew it. There is a 3 squares combo for me. The three squares d7, c7 and a5 are attacked twice by my white rook and queen but only guarded once by your black rook. The black king doesn't count as a guard because it can't capture into check."

1. Rd7+ Ke8

Now it's a 2 squares problem against c7 and a5.

2. Qxa5 Rxa5

3. Rxc7

And white can hold the position to a draw. My uncle has done it to me again.

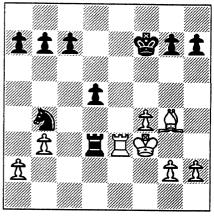

Diagram 82

White is not only a pawn down but black also has the queenside pawn majority.

Now look at it from a 3-squares view-point. The 3 squares e6, d5 and d3 are attacked twice by white's bishop and rook and only guarded once by the black knight. The black king is not a guard because it can not capture into check.

1. Be6+ Kf6

Now it's a two square problem against d5 and d3.

2. Rxd3 Nxd3

3. Bxd5

And white is back in the game.

Amateur vs Master

Employing a rare line against a master is an excellent strategy. But it can backfire when mixed with dubious opening practice.

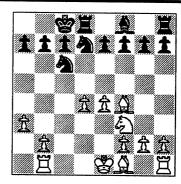

GM J. Fedorowicz (White) - Class A Amateur (Black); Queen's Gambit; US Open 1994: 1. d4 d5 2. c4 Bf5 3. cxd5 Bxb1

Black wants to play 3...Qxd5 without having to face 4.Nc3. But Black trades off a develop piece for one that's not, and inadvertently saves White a tempo to develop (clear the first rank).

4. Qa4+ Qd7 5. Qxd7+ Nxd7 6. Rxb1 Ngf6 7. Nf3 Nxd5 8. e4 Nb4

This galloping around the chessboard can provoke pawn weaknesses but could fence the Knight in with pawns.

9. a3 Nc6 10. Bf4 0-0-0

Logical because Black does two things at the same time: castling and protecting the c-pawn. But fatal. Black would have been better off with 10...Rc8.

11. d5 Ncb8 12. Rc1

12.Ng5 threatens 13.Nf7. But White's after bigger game: the King.

12...c6 13. dxc6 Nxc6 14. Rxc6+ 1-0

If 14....bxc6 then 15.Ba6+ is mate.

GAMES

There's a saying that the best defense is offense. Here's how aggressive and excellent play turn the battle into a win in the following game submitted for BEST SALVAGE.

Queen's Gambit Declined

WHITE: Ruben Reves (2332) BLACK: Mark Siwek (2115)

Kemper vs. Sears

Annotations by Mark Siwek

After the game, I joked that I was going to send it in to the Bulletin Editor as a candidate for Best Salvage. Ruben told me to go ahead, but said he'd only publish it if I included annotations.

1. c4 e6

It seems everyone on the Sears team plays the English, so I wanted to see if Ruben would transpose into a Reti or a Queen's Gambit. He chose the latter.

2. Nc3 d5 3. d4 Nf6 4. Bg5 Nbd7 5. cxd5 exd5 6. Nf3

A well-known trap is 6.Nxd5? Nxd5 7.Bxd8 Bb4+ 8.Qd2 Bxd2+ 9.Kxd2 Kxd8 and Black has won a piece.

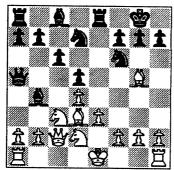

6...c6 7. e3 Qa5 8. Nd2

Black's last introduced a Cambridge Springs Defense-type setup, and while the text is thematic, due to the earlier Pawn exchange, one "book" line is 8.Bd3 Ne4 9.0-0 Nxg5 Be7 11.f4 Nf6

8...Bb4 9. Qc2 0-0 10. Bd3

The most aggressive posting for the Bishop. Without the Pawn exchange earlier, dxc4 would have won a piece, forcing the cleric to develop more modestly at e2.

10...Re8

11. Nb3

(11.0-0 - ed)

I wanted to turn my attention to the Kingside. White's last removed another defender from that wing. I'm also envisioning retreating my Bishop to d6.

Illusory. As Ruben pointed out after the game, thanks to the pin on the e-file, simply 12...Qxf4 picks up the errant Bishop.

12...Bd6?

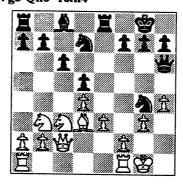

Returning the favor. Neither of us saw the Bishop was en prise, and the text allows 13. Nb5 (another Reyes' postmortem suggestion) cxb5 14. Qxc7 Bxc7 15.Bxc7 with advantage to White.

13. Bxd6 Qxd6 14. 0-0 Ng4

Though the mate threat looks cheap, the intent is to actually weaken the Pawns in front of White's castled King. In the note to Black's 11th, I commented on the lack of White's Kingside

The above explains the strategic plan, but more immediately, it works tactically; e.g. 15.Bxh7+ Kh8 16. g3 Qh6 17.f3 Nxe3.

15. g3 Qh6 16.h4

16...Nf8

I stared at 16...Nxe3 17.fxe3 Rxe3 but it doesn't work because of 18.Qf2 so if 18... Rxd3 19.Qxf7+ Kh8 20. Qf8+ Nxf8 21.Rxf8 Mate.

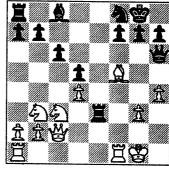

I'm not convinced the text is best, but I was concerned 16...Ndf6 would leave my other horseman with no flight square. The Knight move I played might help defend the back rank, and of course, ... Ng6 and ... Nxh4 are now In some variations, ... Qa4 is played, but possibilities. In addition, the Queen

Bishop is now free to try and exploit the weak White squares on my opponent's Kingside. That explains Ruben's next move - he wants to exchange Bishops. However, 17.e4 looks good, so I may have been better with 16...Ndf6 17.Rc1 Be6 18.Nc5 Re7 19.Ne2 Rae8.

17. Bf5 Nxe3?!

You only go around once. However, the sacrifice is not sound, so this should have been the losing move. Better would have been delaying the "sac", say with 17...Ng6 18.Nc5 Re7 19.Rac1 Nxe3 20.fxe3 Qxe3+ 21.Kg2 Bxf5 22.Qxf5 Qxd4.

18. fxe3 Rxe3

19. Kg2

Chess is an interesting game. In my calculations for my 17th move sacrifice, I noted that if 19.Qf2 Bxf5, so I ex-pected the text. However, I had now planned 19...Qd6, overlooking 20.Qf2 - the SAME Queen move.

19...Ng6 20. Bxg6

I had expected 20.Bxc8, but Ruben feared a possible Knight sacrifice. My only hope is either perpetual check or some sort of endgame where my two extra Pawns might stand up to White's Knight.

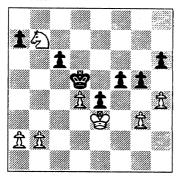

20...hxg6 21. Rae1 Bf5 22. Qf2 Rae8 23. Rxe3 Rxe3 24. Re1 Be4+ 25. Nxe4 Rxe4 26. Rxe4 dxe4 27. Qf4

I have a passed Pawn, but it's probably not sufficient to draw. By exchanging Queens, Ruben eliminates perpetual check possibili-ty.

27...f5 28. Qxh6 gxh6 29. Na5 Kf7 30. Kf2 Ke6 31. Nxb7 Kd5 32. Ke3 g5

My only chance is to mobilize my Kingside Pawns. However, after 33, h5 or 33. hxg5 hxg5 34.Na5 I'm still lost.

At this point in the match, Kemper was up 3-1, and Sears was winning the other game. I stepped away from the board, and one of my teammates asked me if I was satisfied with the impending 3-3 result. Considering we had just lost to UOP 6-0, I told him I was ecstatic.

33. Na5?

The new - and final - losing move. I'm now able to pull the rabbit out of my hat.

(33.Nc5 - ed.)

33...f4+ 34. gxf4 gxh4!

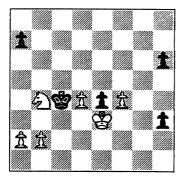

After the game, the same teammate referred to in the note in my 32nd move said he missed this. He said he would have played 34... gxf4+. Ruben now went into a long think. He realized what was happening.

35. Nxc6 h3!

If 35...Kxc6 36.Kxe4 and White is still in the h-Pawn's Queening square, but who cares about the Knight? Passed Pawns must be pushed!

36. Nb4+ Kc4 0-1

Final Position

Avoiding the final swindle. On 36...Kd6, the Knight can get back to stop the e-pawn, and the White monarch snaps up the h-Pawn. However, after the text, Black can't be stopped from Queening first (e.g. 37.Kf2 Kxb4 38.f5 h2 39.Kg2 e3 etc.). Ruben graciously extended his hand.

I'd like to add a postcript: Though I've been lucky against Ruben since Sears moved into the North Division (this game is a good example), he's a fine player and a wonderful gentleman. I'm going to miss competing against him when he retires next year.

The following game is so unique and has such a fantastic finish that if you didn't see it you just may not believe it. The White King marches from g1 to g5 and would have gone on to h6 to support a mate with Qg7++ if Black didn't cut the game short by resigning!!! And mind you, each side still had a Queen, a Rook a minor piece and seven pawns.

1. e4 Nf6 2. e5 Nd5 3. d4 d6 4. Nf3 g6 5. Bc4 Nb6 6. Bb3 Bg7 7. Qe2

The 13th game in Spassky-Fischer went 7.Nbd2 0-0 8.h3 a5 9.a4 dxe5 10.dxe5 Na6 11.0-0 Nc5 12.Qe2 Qe8! when Black snatched the a-pawn.

Karpov's is 7.Ng5

The Fischer maneuver ...Na6-c5 addresses the problem of developing the bishop at c8 by allowing it (the Bishop) to find haven at e6.

8. 0-0 0-0 9. h3 a5

9...Na5 eliminates the Bishop while at the same time allow Black an easier time in developing his c-Bishop such as bringing to e6.

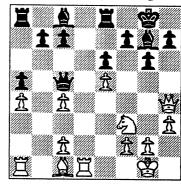

10. a4 dxe5 11. dxe5 Nd4 12. Nxd4 Oxd4 13. Re1 e6

The ramification of the text move isn't apparent at this time. But the danger is there whenever Black fianchettoes the f-bishop and the e-pawn moves forward.

Here the existence of a White pawn at e5 highlights the risk involved. However, Black may have intended to keep White occupied on the queenside and so have no time to direct an assault on the dark squares defended by Black's Bishop at g7.

Black's Bishop has only one square to escape to, but after 38...Bg5 the Bishop runs out of room after 39.h4.

The Chess Olympiad produces a lot of fighting games. This may be because the welfare of a team may depend upon a player having to fight tooth and nail for a point or even a measly draw just to win a match.

A case in point is this brilliant game from the 28th Chess Olympiad held in Thessaloniki, Greece in November 1988.

This was a disastrous 4th round for the US team as we lost to Denmark 1-3. Yasser Seirawan on board 1 and Nick DeFirmian on board 4 could each only get a draw while Larry Christiansen on board 3 lost to E. Mortensen.

From the 30th Olympiad held in Manila, 1992 comes this nice piece of work from Viswanathan Anand of India.

White sacs the exchange to keep Black's King at e8 and then proceeds to exploit the situation.

The Finishing Touch

The thing that often attracts our interest in a game is the flurry of thrust, counter thrust that occurs just before one of the players succumbs. It can be a brilliant mating attack or just a slow but sure strangulation committed on the chessboard. It could also be unique and resourceful play which allows a player to turn a losing game into a win or a draw. Or simply being a witness to a spectacular battle or blunder. But whatever it is it boils down to the spectacle provided by a player's finishing touch.

This one's a gem of a finish from Alexander Beliavsky - Gary Kasparov at Belfort, France 1988 where Black offers the Queen not once but twice!!

Beliavsky (White)

After 18....Na6-b4

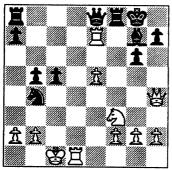

19. Bxg6! ? fxg6

Forced. 19...hxg6 fails against 20.Ng5 Re8 21.Rd7 and the game's practically over as there's no resource adequate to defend against the threat of 22. Qh7+ Kf8 23.Rxf7++.

20. Rd7 Qe8

Preventing 21.Qe7 while preparing the move 21...Rf7 to contest control of Black's 2nd rank.

21.Re7

Threatening to play Rdd7 and spell curtains for Black.

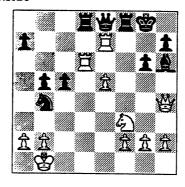

21...Bh6+! 22.Kb1

Forced as 22.Qxh6 obviously loses the Rook at e7 to 22...Qxe7.

22...Rd8!

Here 22... g5 cuts off the White Rook from the White Queen and after 23..Nxg5 Qxe7 24.Qxh6 Black' would then be a piece up, so it looks. But Kasparov's not in a mood to go into a shell one piece ahead, instead opts to go full steam ahead with the attack.

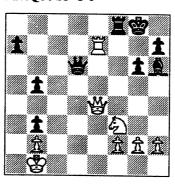

23.Rd6

23....Qc6!! 24.a3

24.Qxh6 fails to 24...Qe4+ and mate in 3 (25.Ka1 Nc2+ 26.Kb1 Na6+ 27.Ka8 Qb8++.). If 24.Ree6 Bf4 25.Qxf4 then 25...Rxd6 wins.

24...Rxd6 25.exd6 Qxd6 26.axb4 cxb4 27.Qe4 b3 1-0

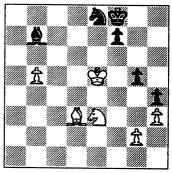

If 28.Qe6+ Qxe6 29.Rxe6 Rc8 30.Re1 Rc2 when 31.Rf1 fails against 31...Bg7 followed by 32...Rxb2+.

If 28.Nd4 Rf4 29.Qe6+Qxe6 30.Nxe6 Rxf2 wins. Or 28.Nd4 Rf4 29.Qa8+Bf8.

From round 2 of the 10th Torneo Internacional de Ajedrez held in March 1992 in Linares, Spain comes this interesting position between Beliavsky and Nigel Short.

What you're about to witness is how a world class GM as Nigel Short can walk into a MATE IN ONE with his eyes wide open.

A. Beliavsky (Black)

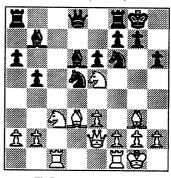

N. Short (White)

After 56...Bb7

57.Nd5 f6+ 58.Ke6?? Bc8++ 1-0

In this one, White interrupts a series of exchanges with one that on the surface seems to lose a piece. But upon closer examination it actually wins the exchange.

H. Dondis (Black)

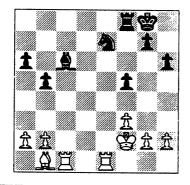

F. Inumerable (White)

After 17...Bd6

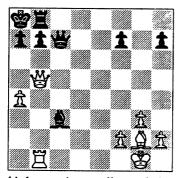

18.Rfd1 Qb8 19.Nxd5 Bxd5 20.Nc6 Bxd6 21.Bxd6!! Seems to lose a piece because after 21...Qxd6 the Bishop at c6 would then be protected and so Black'd be a piece up. But on looking at White's move again, it becomes apparent that 21...Qxd6 loses the Queen to 22.Bh7+ followed by 23.Rxd6. The finishing touch to the game is interesting because of the unique beauty of its simplicity:

21....Qb7 22.Bxf8 Rxf8 23.f3 Nd5 24. Bb1 f5 25.e4 Qb6+ 26.Qf2 Qxf2+ 27. Kxf2 Ne7 28.exf5 exf5 29.Re1 1-0 Final Position

From the 1990 Reykjavik Open comes the following position from Geller-Howell after 27...Bc3

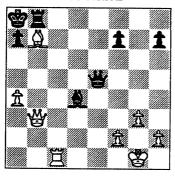

Black's b-pawn's to well guarded. So:

28.Rc1 Qe5 29. Qb3 Bd4

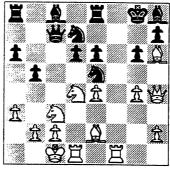

29...Rc8 is met by 30.Rxc6 Qxc6? 31. Qxb7++

30.Bxb7! 1-0

Final Position

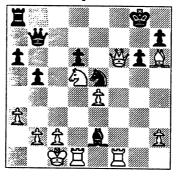

This one from the 1990 Interzonal in Biel (Round 9) is De Firmian-Yudasin after 18...fxe6.

19.Nxe6 Ob7

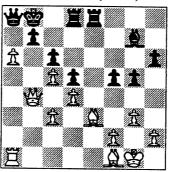

If 19...Rxe6 then 20.Nd5 Qa5 (to prevent 21.Qd8+) 21.Qe7 (threatening both 22.Qxe6+ and mate in 2 and 22.Rf8+ Nxf8 23.Qxf8++) 21... Rxe7? 22. Nxe7++

20.Nd5 Nf6 21.Nec7 Bxg4 22.Nxe8 Bxe2 23. Nexf6+ Bxf6 24.Qxf6 1-0 Final position

From the Dortmund Chess Meeting in 1992 (formerly called Dortmund Chess Festival) comes this no-nonsense finish

R. Heubner (Black)

V. Anand (White) After 23...f5

24.Bh3 Rf8 25.a7 Kc8 26.Qb1

25.a7 has forced the Black King into the diagonal h3-c8. Now White has too many guys on the f-pawn.

26...g4 27.Bf1 Kd7 28.Bd3

White's on to the f-pawn again.

28....Ke6 29.Bf4 Rf7 30.Qc2 Bf8 31.Qe2+ 1-0

Final Position

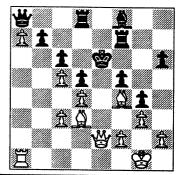

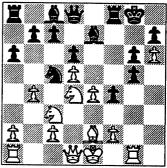

Diagram below is from the 1990 Interzonals. What's eye catching about the finish in this one is that it's simply all about a threat to threaten!!

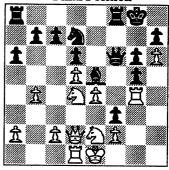

Y. Seirawan (Black)

W. Arencibia (White) After 19. b4

19...Bf6 (The threat's to threaten 20... Bxc3 or 20...Bxd5 if White plays 20.bxc5) 20. Od2 Be5 (Amazingly, Black's threat is still to threaten retaliation along the diagonal with 21...Qf6 on 21.bxc5) 21. Rd1 Of6 (Black's still on White's back along the diagonal) 22. Bg4 Bxg4 23. Ratings Chairman's Report

Team Captains Information

A number of early-round match results have not been received, or have been received late. Team captains are reminded that both captains are expected to send the results of each match to me as soon as possible after completion of the match in order to have the most up-to-date ratings and team standings in each issue of the bulletin. In addition, the home team captain should forward a copy of the results to the division chairman.

Some early-round results that have not yet been received are: Exemplars vs. Fel-Pro (North Div. round 3), Hull Trading vs. CRT (East Div. round 1) and Hull Trading vs. Alumni Central (East Div. round 3). If these matches have been played it would be appreciated if someone would send me the results.

I will be glad to receive results by electronic mail at czar@csgcbu.att.com. However, the paper results sheet should be sent anyway in order to provide the official record of the match result.

Ratings Correction

It has been determined that Hugh Gallagher, a new player with the Argonne Knights of the Near West Division, entered the CICL with a USCF rating of 1322. Before this could be verified, two games involving Hugh were rated in the last issue of the Bulletin assuming that he was unrated. This error has now been corrected and the two games were re-rated by hand prior to rating the games published in this issue of the Bulletin. As a result of this, Ed Gorz of A&B Radio lost 22 rating points, while Howard Klinefelter of J. I. Case gained 11 points.

Ratings Schedule

The ratings will next be updated just before New Year's Day. In general, the U.S. mail should provide adequate lead time for delivery of results, and team captains should not need to fax results to me. I prefer to receive results by mail rather than fax. However, should captains decide to fax results they must reach me by Thursday, Dec. 22 due to my holiday vacation schedule.

-- Charlie Ward CICL Ratings Chairman
