2000 CICL Playoffs

Individual Cross Score Table By Team

by Ruben Reyes

How to read the table

Names and scores are listed in ascending order by board number. However, players may shift boards. To identify the board a player scores on, a subscript in small print accompanies a player's score for that Round. For example, Pablo Diaz of Lucent Tech. Tyros played board 2 in Round 1. But then he moved down to board 5 in Round 2 and to board 4 in Round 3. A "5" in small print accompanies his "1" in Round 2 and a "4" his "0" in Round 3.

An asterisk () indicates a player didn't play in that Round. For example, Pete Stein of Lucent Tech. Tyros played only in Round 3. An asterisk "" is placed on his score for Rounds 1 and 2. So, in Rounds 1 and 2, Isidro Tamez played board 1. In Round 3, Tamez moved down to board 2 with Stein on board 1.

How to read the table

Names and scores are listed in ascending order by board number. However, players may shift boards. To identify the board a player scores on, a subscript in small print accompanies a player's score for that Round. For example, T. Ludwig of Lucent Tech. Dragons played board 1 in Round 1. But then he moved down to board 2 in Rounds 2 and 3. A "2" in small print accompanies his "0" in Rounds 2. and 3. Likewise, a "1" accompanies the "0" for F. Tegel Round 2 and the ".5" for Round 3.

An asterisk (*) indicates a player didn't play in that Round. For example, L. Sagalovsky and R. Rzeszutko of Alumni Aces played only in Round 1. An asterisk "" is placed on their score for Rounds 2 and 3. So, in Rounds 2 and 3, H. Allen played on board 2 but on board 4 in round 1.

Claiming A Win on Time

During this past season, a protest regarding a win due to expiration of the time limit created a bit of a stir. As this is a fairly common occurrence, it would be good that everyone understand what is correct. Let's review the case, the rules, and the decision here so that the requirements are clarified.

The Case

Homer and Ned (names changed to protect the guilty) were paired in a recent match; their tense game boiled down to a mutual time scramble at the first control. Homer made the last move- a Queen check that Ned, after a puzzled review, captured to go up a full Queen. Unfortunately, Ned's flag fell. Homer immediately claimed a win on time and stopped the clocks (he had just a couple minutes left as well).

Seems simple enough, except for the fact that Homer hadn't recorded the last three moves for either side (6 actual chess moves) on his score sheet. Ned realized this and stated the claim was invalid, insisting that Homer sit down and finish the game. After a debate, Homer wrote in the three missing move-pairs and said "Now I claim the win" and left. Review of Homer's scoresheet revealed several other moves that weren't exactly right. For example, the recorded Qxd7 was really Qxd2, etc.

These facts and the scoresheets were agreed by both sides and turned into the Division Chairman for a decision.

The Rules

Discussion centered around three issues: 1) What is the maximum missing moves allowed?, 2) What is a "move" considered: one player's move, or a move from each color ("move-pair")?, 3) Can a player claim a win after fixing his/her scoresheet?

- 1) The maximum missing moves allowed is 3.
- 2) A missing move here is considered "move-pairs", so Homer happened to just make the requirement. However, also included are moves written, but unclear! What "unclear" is happens to be vague and left to the TD's judgement.
- 3) All of the requirements must be met before the claim is made. If invalid, the clocks are resumed as if the time control had been made. No second chances.

The Decision

Homer had missed recording 3 move-pairs. The other invalid recorded moves were deemed "close enough". The win on time was awarded to Homer.

Steps to Properly Claim a Win on Time

1. The requirements must be met before a claim and while the clocks are still running.
2. The claim must be accompanied by a valid scoresheet; one which has no more than 3 move-pairs ambiguous or missing.
3. The clocks are stopped upon the claim, pending review by the Tournament Director (team captains, in our league)
4. If claim ruled invalid, clocks resume as if time control had been made.
